The Faculty Learning Community for Junior Faculty (FLC, Jr.)

What is it?
The Faculty Learning Community for Junior Faculty (FLC, Jr.) is a great opportunity to meet new junior faculty in a friendly, supportive environment while working on a variety of teaching skills to strengthen your effectiveness as an instructor.

What’s the time commitment?
The total time commitment over the semester (which includes food!) is roughly equivalent to a three-day conference. Most sessions occur over lunch. Two sessions will be held on a weekend day.

When is it offered?
FLC, Jr starts in Spring 2016, with one session in January 7 before classes start, some Friday noon-2 pm sessions in the Spring 2016 semester and a two weekend days. The exact schedule will be posted on the UTLC website.

Top 5 reasons to join FLC, Jr
1. Join together in a community of support with other junior faculty, and have some stress-relieving fun.
2. Make new faculty friends and develop valuable connections that will last you a lifetime.
3. Acquire letters that add to the teaching portion of your tenure/promotion dossier.
4. Learn useful techniques that engage students and help you connect better with them.
5. Strengthen your classroom skills. Start on the road to becoming the sought-after teacher that you aspire to be.

Where do I get more info?
Drop in for 15 minutes at any of our walk-in info sessions 1-2pm, Thursday, October 15, or 1-2 pm Friday, October 16 in SEH 4605.

How do I join?
Fill in the online application here: http://tlc.provost.gwu.edu/faculty-learning-community-junior-faculty (the form will be active in October)